RSLC Teacher Spotlight

If you ask Ms. Regina why she does what she does, be prepared for a dissertation on children, child development, and their authenticity. She wants every child to feel loved, respected, and valued for who they are no matter where they are. Anyone that has had the pleasure to watch her in class would agree, as it is hard to overlook her insight when it comes to child development.

When she is not loving on every single child at RSLC (everyone is her favorite – but don't tell anyone else that!), Ms. Regina is spending time with her children and grandchildren. She is also pursuing her degree in Early Childhood Education and working hard to set an example for the future of our world.

RSLC Family Spotlight

The Huppe Family has only been at RSLC for a couple of months but their impact has been felt by the entire community! While Dad, Andrew, is from the KC area, the family recently relocated from Brooklyn, NY in September of 2022. Ruben (2) joined RSLC just after they moved to KC, with Issa (6 months) join in December.

The family has already found many new family traditions and has had fun finding new adventures for their family. From exploring pumpkin patches to visiting Santa, they love exploring in the metro. They are looking forward to even more discoveries this spring and summer!

Have you heard about MEEC?

According to the CDC: Early developmental opportunities can provide a foundation for children's academic success, health, and general well-being. Preschool-aged children experience profound biological brain development and achieve 90 percent of their adult brain volume by age 6. This physiological growth allows children to develop functional skills related to information processing, comprehension, language, emotional regulation, and motor skills.

How does this happen? Early Childhood Education (ECE) Centers & Providers of course!

ECE Providers are a critical resource for families and an integral component of the national infrastructure. MEEC's goal is to help ECE Providers gain access to support systems, policy influence, and advocacy resources that an organized representation can provide.

How can you get involved?
